This picture represents BLM(Black Lives Matter). The main girl in the middle is black, she is joining a protest in a sweater that says "black lives matter" all around. These protests have been going around for the past few months and have changed the world. The silhouette in the back is the other people protesting with the girl, some of them are holding signs. Then below, you can see two hands. One of them is coloured white, and one of them is coloured black. These two hands are holding hands. This represents that anyone with different coloured skin can be friends, or family. Then shall not be judged. This is the story behind my picture.
